(3) Mergers & Acquisition Issues

While the current credit environment limits the M&A activities of some companies, it also provides buying opportunities for companies that continue to have access to capital and to the credit markets. As companies prepare to take advantage of this environment, they need to prepare for impending changes in the accounting for acquisitions. This session will focus on:

- The new acquisition accounting standard, SFAS 141R, and the related standard on consolidation procedures, SFAS 160, and how both will impact acquisition accounting and modeling in 2009 and beyond;
- The impact of SFAS 141R on the acquisition of leases; and
- The interplay of the new fair value accounting standard and acquisition accounting requirements.
