

DAILY COVID-19 UPDATE

March 23, 2021

WHAT HAPPENED TODAY

Today, Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen and Federal Reserve Chairman Jerome Powell testified before the House Financial Services Committee regarding oversight of COVID-related pandemic spending. During the hearing, Chairman Powell reiterated he does not expect pandemic-related spending to result in unmanageable inflation. He stated a "surge in spending and temporary price increases" will not disrupt disinflationary trends. Chairman Powell added that the Fed has the tools to address inflation if it does occur.

Late last night, the National Institutes of Health issued a statement that AstraZeneca may have used outdated data when it reported promising U.S. trial results for its COVID-19 vaccine.

AstraZeneca said this morning that its disclosure on Monday was based on an interim analysis with a data cutoff as of February 17. The company indicated it will publish updated efficacy data within 48 hours.

Notably, CDC Director Dr. Rochelle Walensky warned yesterday that the U.S. could experience "another avoidable surge" in COVID-19 infections as a result of
